Glover

Thomas Livestock Co Inc | Oconto, NE

I was in charge of taking out the babies from the sows by gloving.

I learned a variety of positions so when a coworker would not be able to come to work I was able to fill in her/his job.

I learned how to check the pigs heat and when they were ready to be inseminated. I would inseminate on the weekend because we worked two weeks and got every other weekend off.

I was also working taking the pigs to eat. Every morning they would give me a sheet of paper and a number of the pigs identity and which pen the pig was located in and I had to find the pig in a pen of 200+ and take it through a machine which releases food.

I was also familiar with different types of medicine used to vaccinate the pigs.

In addition, I would work with different tools due to screws falling off the cages of the sows. I sometimes had to measure equipment to be able to repair the doors.

I did this job while I was growing up because it was a summary job and was done by my school. I started when I was in middle school and did it every year until I was legal age to work. This job required a lot of effort due to us having to be in the hot sun for a long period of time. During this summary job we were not allowed any days off for the reason of it only being temporary.
